NDLTAP and the Transportation Learning Network recently offered 2 half day learning opportunities on the topic of Work Zone Safety for Short Term Projects, March 26 (virtual) and March 27 (on-site) The NDLTAP on-site training was held at the Bismarck Public Works Building.

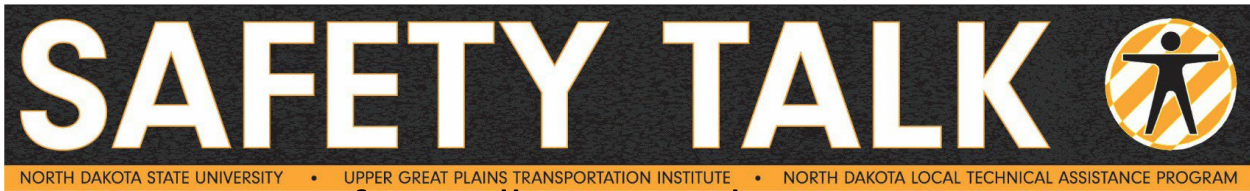

A big thank you to the City of Bismarck Public Works for the hosting this training. The on-site classroom was filled with county, city and construction company operators. This training is designed with a focus on daytime projects that cover up to a typical work shift in duration, along with short duration projects that last less than one hour. This course is based on recent work zone safety audit field reviews performed on water system utility projects. This course was developed in 2023 and 2024 and delivered as part of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's Susan Harwood Grant Program. Tim Luttrell, an ATSSA Master Instructor was the instructor for both sessions.

NDLTAP will be offering a full-day training on Work Zone Safety for Local Agencies, September 9, location is not yet determined. The instructor for this training will be Shawna Page from Montana LTAP. This training will be beneficial to all county and city operator, county and city road/street supervisors, contractors and safety officers. Registration will be available soon.
